SAM organise a summer camp in Bylakuppe

12th, May, '13, Bylakuppe.

For the first time in Tibetan settlement in Bylakuppe, SAM has organised SAM Summer Camp 2013 for school children from 12th May to 19th May, 2013. Executive Director Mr Namgyal Choephel said that "It's filled with fun, entertainment and above all educating children where SAM offers many opportunities to form and develop enduring friendships, learn new skills and take on many new challenges."

The main reason for this camp is for the development of children's education and culture. They look forward in nurturing and providing positive environments where children participate, to develop, gain experience and confidence. It will help children to unwind and escape from their daily school activities where Children will enjoy their time outside and away from their parents, spending it with other children of similar ages, and are simultaneously learning experience.

Mr Penpa Sangpo, The General

Secretary added that parents should encourage their children to sign up their children for a summer camp, as it will be indirectly assisting their child in building his or her self-confidence. Allowing them to enjoy their summer vacation in this camp will improve their self-esteem and teach them to become more productive when interacting with other people while enjoying.

Summer camp develops child's personal strengths – Children will learn how to cope with different situations or problems – making them less reliant on their parents and more dependable and more self-confident.

The special features of this camp are to give introduction and Religious Ethics Talk from different religious point of view, Session on Social, Environment and Health. Cleanliness Drive, Session on Communication Skills and Opportunities, Sports and Recreation Activities and Picnic cum trekking.

So, everything boils down to one's interest, as he or she would be the one going to the camp. Since its first of its kind in the settlement, many parents do not understand the importance of it.
